The Early Years

Bridgewater State College, one of the oldest public colleges in America, first opened its doors in September 1840. Nicholas Tillinghast, a graduate of West Point and a former instructor at the Academy, was the first principal of the school. There were seven men and twenty-one women in the initial graduating class.

Former Town Hall's first floor was the school's home from 1840 to 1846 until a permanent building was constructed on the present quadrangle in 1921. This was the first building erected in America for the preparation of teachers during a time when the college was allowed to award only the Bachelor of Science degree. However, in 1932 the school became Bridgewater State Teacher's College, and in 1937 the college began offering graduate courses. A multi-purpose liberal arts curriculum was introduced in 1960 and the degree of Bachelor of Arts was added.

Bridgewater Today

Today, the college has grown to more than 9,000 full and part-time students and two-hundred and seventy full-time faculty. While maintaining a strong emphasis on liberal arts and teacher education, BSC has expanded significantly into several professional fields, such as social work, computer science, aviation science, and management science.

The first woman president of Bridgewater State, Adrian Tinsley was appointed in 1989 and has helped the college flourish into the 21st century. In September 1995, the Moakley Center opened and established Bridgewater as a leader among pioneering institutions in New England educational technology. With the construction of a commuter rail station in the heart of Bridgewater two years later, the college has become accessible to students from all over the region.

Also, BSC opened the Hunt School as a campus building in 2001. Vacant for two years, the building was purchased for $225,000 and now houses college classrooms and offices.

Finally, Dr. Adrian Tinsley announced at the college's annual spring commencement last May that she will leave the office in June 2002 after completing thirteen years as the president of the largest state college in Massachusetts. President Tinsley pledged to see to the successful conclusion of a number of major projects undertaken during her years in office that include $56.3 million for new buildings: a $17.3 million field house, a 300-bed residence hall and a 700-seat dining facility on the East Side of campus. The college is also in the midst of its first-ever public capital campaign, which has a $10 million goal to support more student scholarship and greater funding for faculty research. The new buildings are scheduled to open in 2002.

Expanding from a single building and a quarter-acre of land in 1846, BSC now has two-hundred and forty acres and over thirty academic, administrative, and residential buildings, all of which are wired for high-speed voice, video, and data transmission.

A final message from our President

November 1, 2001

Dear Members of the Class of 2002,

Your years at Bridgewater are chronicled in this yearbook in words and pictures, and I hope that they bring back many happy and pleasant memories of the time you spent here.

We are, in a sense, "graduating" together, because my presidency of Bridgewater, which began thirteen years ago in 1989, is concluding shortly after your Commencement. Like you, I am extremely proud of my affiliation with this college and very much indebted to all the members of this campus community. I will forever be grateful for the many wonderful experiences I have had at this college.

As I look to Bridgewater's future, I have great confidence in this institution and its ability to serve the citizens of this region and the state with distinction and pride. The class of 2002 witnessed a number of important new developments over the course of four years that are evidence of the college's numerous strengths. For example, when you entered Bridgewater in the fall of 1998, the college was beginning to establish in earnest its national reputation for technological innovation (leading to being chosen, in 2000 and 2001, among America's "100 Most Wired Campuses"). At the same time, the academic program was expanding and a series of major new construction projects was about to begin. As a result, a strong sense of momentum is well-established here at Bridgewater, and I am grateful to you for everything you have done to contribute to that effort.

Now that you are soon to be alumni, I hope very much that the college can continue to count on your involvement and participation. We depend on the support of our graduates, and please be assured you are always welcome back here.

On behalf of our entire Bridgewater family, I wish you well in all of your endeavors.

Sincerely,

Adrian Tinsley
President

Remembering John Heller & Jerrol Toledo

The 2002 Yearbook Staff proudly dedicates this year's book to Professor John Heller, who died on February 17, 2001 at age fifty-six of a massive heart attack. A professor at the college since 1968, Heller was very active in all phases of college life, serving on many committees, advising students, authoring new programs, organizing exhibits, as well as carrying a full teaching schedule. Known for his wit and his ability to inspire, he unselfishly shared his time, expertise, and friendship with students and colleagues. An expert on antique homes, John also found time to make fine jewelry and ceramics and serve on the boards and committees of a number of professional, regional, and national craft organizations.

The 2002 Yearbook Staff also dedicates this year's book to Jerrol Justin Toledo, who passed away on Thursday, March 15, 2001. Jerrol was a graduate of Brockton High School in 1998 and a Rose Scholarship recipient here at Bridgewater. A management science major who was a well-known and active member and leader in many campus organizations, Toledo would have graduated in 2002.

Faculty and Friends Honor John's Memory

"More than most of us, John made connections with all the people that form this college community...he just had the gift of extending his friendship regardless of the kind of category that person belonged to." President Adrian Tinsley

"Some [students] said he was the very best teacher they had ever had." Dr. Roger Dunn

"I found him to be a very gentle and thoughtful person who cared about people and certainly about the college."

Dr. Laurence Richards

"John was my mentor. He gave me the opportunities that otherwise would not have been give to me...he was always willing to give more than you would expect from one of your professors." Graduate Joanne Walsh

Entering a Whole New World

September 2001

The Bridgewater Day of Hope and Remembrance, held the week following the September 11th terrorist attacks against the United States, was notable for its stirring words, inspirational music, warm late September sunshine, and for its silence. Even though hundreds of people gathered on the Boyden Quadrangle, including Bridgewater residents, middle school students and many college employees, barely a word was uttered as the audience listened to inspiring messages from community leaders and moving music from BSC students and faculty.

The reflective silence spoke volumes about the intensity with which people have reacted to the deadly terrorist acts against the United States that killed more than 5,000 people.

"We have all struggled to cope with a tragedy of enormous dimension," President Tinsley said in her remarks to the audience. "We come together today to remember the victims, but also to hope for the future."

As people gathered on the quad, students handed out ribbons they had designed in response to the attacks. The red ribbon stood for the love that binds us together, the white symbolized hope for peace, the blue was to show support for those who will be called to military service, and the black ribbon that bound the others was a sign of respect and mourning for those who lost their lives last week.

President Tinsley shared the sad news that a Bridgewater alumnus, William Hunt, Class of '92 and formerly of Halifax, was working on the 84th floor of one of the World Trade Center towers when it was struck. The president also noted that the town and the college have a history of gathering together during times of national crisis that dates back more than 150 years. During the Civil War, World War I, World War II and the Vietnam War, the town and college came together in a show of unity. President Tinsley presided over such a gathering 10 years ago when people came to the quadrangle to hold candles and pray for the American servicemen and women who were called to Desert Storm.

"We share with each other a message of strength, pride and determination, and also support one another in our tragic losses," she said.

James Nihan of the Bridgewater Board of Selectmen said that he has found inspiration in looking to the young people of the town and the college, who, he said, "don't see color or religious differences." He urged those young people to continue to remind those around them of the importance of tolerance for diversity, especially as reports of harassment and acts of violence against Arab-Americans become more frequent. "We can't say terrorism is bad and then turn around and do it to others in our own country, other Americans," Mr. Nihan said.

Student Government Association President Donovan Fauvelle urged his classmates to keep up the good work they began last week to provide assistance for those directly affected by the terrorist attacks.

"The young people of this campus and of this nation are ready to put down prejudice, put aside their differences and work together," he said. "We are not 'the lazy generation;' rather, we have just never had the chance to be tested and the chance to shine."

While watching the horrifying events replayed on television last week, Mr. Fauvelle said he could already hear his fellow students talking about what they could do to help. He expressed hope that the spirit of cooperation born out of the devastation would eventually change the way

Sept. 11, 2001 is remembered.

"September 11, 2001 will be the day that hate taught America how to love," Mr. Fauvelle said.

Special Moments

CONVOCATION

This year's senior convocation was an emotional rollercoaster with the sadness of September 11 still tugging at people's hearts and lingering in their minds.

David Robichaud, a 1983 graduate of Bridgewater State College, was the featured speaker and spoke to the senior class with mixed emotions as he joked about his memories at the college and then about his time reporting from New York City after the attack.

President Adrian Tinsley handed out medallions, which honored faculty and staff for twenty-five years of service to the college, to Edward James, philosophy; Margaret Johnson psychology; and David Richards, psychology. Honoring the faculty and staff at convocation is one of the most important things we do, stated President Tinsley.

3. Audience members applaud after a speech given by the featured speaker, David Robichaud.
 4. Jessica Stanley shows off the class banner for the Class of 2002.
 5. Three happy Seniors take their first steps towards graduation.
 6. "Using your degree to help our community, our state, our region and our nation will be especially important in the difficult times ahead" was the message President Adrian Tinsley told the Class of 2002.
 7. Administration and Faculty listen intently to President Tinsley's words of insight and inspiration.
 8. A little joking around before the start of Convocation.
 9. Cindy Paige and Missy Muszynski wait for the ceremony to begin.
 10. Student Government Association President Donovan Fauvelle gets ready to address the Class of 2002.

HOMECOMING

The theme was "One Wicked Weekend" and that is just what it was. From the creepy floats made by clubs and organizations to the wickedly-exciting victory by the Bears over Fitchburg in the Homecoming football game, Homecoming Weekend 2001 was full of ghosts, ghouls, alumni and the American spirit. There were road races, face-paintings, pumpkin carvings, old memories and the creation of new ones. "One Wicked Weekend" turned out to be not frightening at all. It had spirit that would make any Bear proud to be an American and a member of the BSC family.

1. Laura Flynn and Jessica Uhlman head up the Homecoming Parade.
2. Sister of Gamma Phi Beta, Tracy Obert holds the winning check for $1,000, given by the Bridgewater Alumni Association, for having the winning Homecoming Parade float along with Kappa Delta Phi.

7. RHA dance to the live band during their float performance.

8. President Adrian Tinsley "clowns around" at the Homecoming game.

9. Sisters of Phi Sigma Sigma and the Brothers and Sisters of Phi Pi Delta stop in their lobster-mashing to smile for the camera.

10. Homecoming King Dan Jacobvitz and Queen Junie Joseph.

HOMECOMING

1. The Wicked Queen, a BSC football player, a Werewolf, a Mad Scientist, Dracula, and the Devil: the Addams Family for the New Millenium?
2. Some gal pals hitch a ride on the side of a float before the parade begins.
3. "It's not easy being green..."
4. A devoted member of RHC shows her red and white BSC pride mixed with a little orange Halloween spirit.
5. Scooby Doo and crew cheer wildly atop the Mystery Machine van.
6. Theater friends entertain the crowd with some rock n' roll.
7. "I know you hate makeup but just smile for the camera and pretend you like it."
8. Lobster Mashers claw around.
9. SGA members hold onto the back of their float for support as it rides through the streets of Bridgewater.
10. BSC students show off their painted paws and red and white attire.

Andrew Card, chief of staff for President George W. Bush, was the keynote speaker for Winter commencement exercises on January 25, 2002. To the 500-plus new graduates he urged: "Take your degree, be very proud of it," he said. "More importantly, become a citizen participant; do good, and you will overcome evil."

President Tinsley advised: "As you take your leave this evening, and I follow a few months hence, we can take pride and satisfaction that we have done our best to leave for those who come after us a Bridgewater that is truly an outstanding public institution of higher learning in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts."

Student speaker Elizabeth Lee of Dorchester congratulated her classmates and encouraged them to find joy and purpose in their work: "We need to take the gift of education that we have received and use it to the fullest potential each and every day. In these unsettled

spring GRADUATION

Dr. Adrian Tinsley, the 10th president in the 162-year history of Bridgewater State College, celebrated the last official college ceremony of her presidency under rainy skies by awarding nearly 900 graduates their degrees and offering reflections in her commencement address on her career in public higher education.

She shared with the graduates the three elements she believes are the most important for a successful life and career:

"To have good work to do is a privilege. It's not an obligation. It's a privilege. To build an institution is a privilege. To have the opportunity to help make an institution stronger - that's a privilege," said President Tinsley. "To serve the public good is the greatest privilege of all. This graduation morning, underneath this tent, we see in the faces of our graduates what can happen when a public college is created to serve the public good."

Three new schools were created at BSC during Dr. Tinsley's presidency, and the campus has grown through the acquisition of additional land and the construction of new buildings, several of which will open this fall.

She has significantly advanced the college's academic curriculum by adding new undergraduate and graduate degree programs and providing strong leadership in the implementation of advanced technology for teaching and learning, which has garnered national attention for the college.

She is also leaving an everlasting legacy at Bridgewater State College with the creation of an endowment. Under Dr. Tinsley's leadership, the college's Foundation embarked on its first-ever endowment drive - The Campaign for Bridgewater. At Friday evening's ninth annual Chairmen's Dinner, the college's premiere fund-raising event, she announced that the campaign's $10 million goal set for June 30, 2002, had been achieved.

spring GRADUATION

"We are celebrating a very important milestone in the college's history," President Tinsley told an audience of 360 faculty, staff, alumni, corporate supporters and donors to the college who attended the event to celebrate her leadership and legacy. "This endowment will give Bridgewater's best students access to educational opportunities equal to any college in the United States."

Dr. William O'Neil, executive officer of the Massachusetts Council of State College Presidents, received an honorary degree in public education at commencement ceremonies. Dr. O'Neil has a distinguished 42-year career in public education in Massachusetts, much of it in the higher education sector.

Mrs. Elsie Frank, a prominent advocate for the elderly and mother of Congressman Barney Frank, was awarded an honorary degree in public service. She was president of the Massachusetts Association of Older Americans from 1991-97 and is a life member of the Executive Office of Elder Affairs Governor's Advisory Committee.

Mr. Louis Ricciardi received the Bridgewater State College Distinguished Service Award. He has served two terms as a member of the college's Board of Trustees and for more than a decade on the Bridgewater State College Foundation, serving since 1996 as its chairman. He co-chaired the inaugural $10 million endowment campaign that came to a successful conclusion this spring.

Two BSC faculty members were honored at the ceremony. The Bridgewater State College Lifetime Faculty Research Award to honor distinction in academic research over the span of an individual's career at BSC was presented to Dr. Michael Kryzanek, a member of the college's faculty since 1973. He is the author of six books on Latin American politics and U.S.-Latin American relations.

The Class of 1950 Distinguished Faculty Research Award honors a faculty member or librarian who is engaged in a significant research project during the current academic year. The year's recipient is

spring GRADUATION

Dr. Nancy Street. Dr. Street has been a member of the college's faculty since 1980 and for more than two decades has been engaged in active scholarship on the People's Republic of China.

Ms. Tracy Karcz, a member of the Class of 2002 and student speaker, encouraged her classmates not to be deterred by life's challenges, but to rise to the occasion:

"Unfortunately, we will not be able to escape life's challenges and obstacles. We must face whatever comes our way head on and overcome it to the best of our ability," said Ms. Karcz. "But I do believe that the experiences we have had here at Bridgewater have made us who we are today. Therefore, we can handle anything that life throws our way."

SHEA & DURGIN HALLS

1. Rob Harrington juggles several IM conversations on AOL Instant Messenger.
2. In the comfort of the top bunk, Lizette Carnasquillo gets in some late night studying.
3. Michelle Lockland and Matthew Backman cuddle and snooze after a long day.
4. With guilty faces, Adam Miller, Rube Miller, and Nick Ella fail to get rid of the incriminating carbonated beverage container.
5. Liz Robins cleans her desk as Anna Refuse chats away in one of the best decorated dorms on campus.
6. Tim Delsignore lounges around watching the boob tube as he waits for his roommate to return from class.
7. While Nicole Nakataki completes her term paper, Katie Dussalt makes Halloween decorations for the room.

10

8. Rob Lavalley, Nick Hannigan, and Adam Dorro patrol the halls.

9. All done with studying, Allison Packard, Billy Beanchamp, Karen Murphy, and Brendan Chambers head off for a fun-filled night.

10. Forget the work- these girls just wanna have fun!

11. Rafael Marquez, James Laduc and Tom Jose huddle for a pre-game meeting.

1. Kathi Holcomb takes a quick study break to smile for the camera.

2. Kelly Bilodeau performs her RA duties right from the privacy of her very own dorm.

3. Mike Fanning has college life down lounging around and talking on the phone.

4. Luke Barren: "How dare you barge into my room unannounced! Do you have an appointment?"

5. Justin Fisher and Mike Boba: "Whazzzup!"

6. All smiles, Erin Cahill rejoices as she finds the last penny needed to pay for her movie ticket.

7. Allison Carbone waits by her window in anticipation of the advent of her visitor.

8. Eli Hill and Robert Mum wrestle each other for first dibs on the Swedish exchange student.

10

9. "Thanks for stopping by, heh, don't come back," Steve Iannessa waves with a mock smile while stern Scott Lewis makes sure we don't overstay our welcome with an unnerving glare.

10. "Should I destroy him with fire or the blade of my sword?" Craig Harrison ponders as he plays Magic the Gathering against an inferior opponent.

11. Ben Kallis and Chris Regland share a hug during a session of late-night mischief.

SCOTT HALL

1 Ladies' man Justin Drago struts down the hall in search of a damsel in distress

2. Mmmooooo: Coree Dibble loves them cows.

Activities

Begun as a simple pep band in the stands in 1994, the Gridiron Bear Band has become a tightly-knit precision marching band. Precision drills from well-drawn chart books, a clean and organized plan and good instruction keep rehearsal time efficient and productive.

Although numbers are not huge, the spirit is high. Because of the need to overcome space, facility and scheduling difficulties (remember, this is the first marching band Bridgewater State College has had in 158 years of its history!) it is sometimes known as "the band that couldn't stay out of trouble." After three years of struggle, the band established itself on its own practice field (thanks to the work of Athletic Director John Harper and Buildings and Ground Director Keith Macdonald), and now the crowds keep their area free on game days instead of wondering why they are there! There is a fantastic relationship with the cheerleaders and the Athletic Department.

In fact, Bridgewater State College is the only college team in the New England Football Conference with a performing Marching Band!

The Anime Club came into existence in March 2001 and has been steadily growing as a club ever since. We do a few minor events, but the main purpose of the club is to provide a stress-free environment to any and all students who love anime or even have a mild curiosity about it! You can usually find our bake sales and raffles because we always have anime playing behind us! We always welcome new members all year round, so feel free to stop by anytime!

GOD

AMERICA

The Annual Scoop

September 2001-May 2002

Students, faculty, staff, and townspeople from Bridgewater attended a ceremony for the Day of Hope and Remembrance on the Boyden Quadrangle on Wednesday, September 19th to share in the grief of the nation as well as attempt to gain some semblance of understanding over the September 11th tragedy.

BSC moves up to #50 on Yahoo! Internet Life magazine's list of "America's Most Wired Colleges 2001." MIT ranked fifth and Harvard ranked fifty-eighth.

Bridgewater State College plans to tighten the noose on the campus smoking policy in the 2002-2003 academic year. No longer will there be designated smoking areas in dorms nor will people be able to smoke near the exteriors of certain other college buildings.

Costing approximately $60 million total, a new residence hall, dining facility, athletic complex (field house) and new operations center are being constructed at BSC. With the others scheduled to open next fall, the new operations center is likely to open in 2003, will replace Campus Police headquarters across the street from the Moakley Center, and will be located behind Shea/Durgin Hall. A renovated Harrington Hall will open Fall 2002 and will be the new home for the School of Management and Aviation.

After thirteen years as college President, Dr. Adrian Tinsley will be stepping down. She is most proud of the success of the new building programs, of her success in organizing the departments into different schools of education, and the new field house. Tinsley vows to work on projects for the college as well as be involved in bringing the college's history up to date (it stops in 1967).

Bridgewater State College

Becoming the college's eleventh President, Vice-President for Administration and Finance Dana Mohler-Faria will succeed President Tinsley in Fall 2002. Graduating with an associate's degree in liberal arts from Cape Cod Community College, Mohler-Faria earned his bachelor's and master's degrees in U.S. history from Boston University. He later earned his doctorate in higher education administration from the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

Returning to Cape Cod Community College as the Director of SACHEM Outreach program and the Director of Financial Aid, Mohler-Faria also served as the Assistant Dean of Administrative Services at Bristol Community College. At Mount Wachusett Community College, he was also the Assistant to the President for Business and Industry and the Dean of Administrative Services.

Higher education in Massachusetts took a fifty million dollar loss as a result of the 2002 House-Senate budget cuts. 10.9 of the 50 million dollars are cuts that have been made from the funding for state and community colleges. Here at BSC, hourly salary budgets (not including student payroll) have been cut 5%, funds for out of state travel have been frozen, appropriation for the Maxwell Library has taken a significant loss of funds, and regular state appropriation was level funded.

On Sunday, February 3, 2002, Dr. Maya Angelou captivated a packed crowd in the Campus Center auditorium. She stressed the importance of a college education and urged students to become familiar with the librarians and to "read anything you can." In her powerful, booming voice, she recited the works of great African-American poets and left the audience with the message: "Each one of us has the possibility of being a rainbow in the clouds...Learn so much that you can be useful as a rainbow in someone's cloud."

Facts of Life by Mr. "The Glass is Half Full"

The only reason anyone would ever hate you is because they want to be just like you.

A smile from you can bring happiness to anyone, even if they don't like you.

Every night, SOMEONE thinks about you before they go to sleep.

You mean the world to someone.

If not for you, someone may not be living.

When you make the biggest mistake ever, something good comes from it.

When you think the world has turned its back on you, take a look: you most likely turned your back on the world.

When you think you have no chance of getting what you want, you probably won't get it; but if you believe in yourself, probably, sooner or later, you will get it.

Always remember the compliments you received.

Forget about the rude remarks.

Always tell someone how you feel about them; you will feel much better when they know.

If you have a great friend, take the time to let them know that they are great.

Words of Wisdom

by Ms. "Older and Wiser"

There's always a lot to be thankful for if you take time to look for it. For example, I am sitting here thinking how nice it is that wrinkles don't hurt.

When I'm feeling down, I like to whistle. It makes the neighbor's dog that barks all the time run to the end of his chain and gag himself.

If you can't be kind, at least have the decency to be vague.

A penny saved is a government oversight.

The older you get, the tougher it is to lose weight, because by then your body and your fat are really good friends.

The easiest way to find something lost around the house is to buy a replacement.

He who hesitates is probably right.

If you can smile when things go wrong, you probably have someone in mind to blame.

The sole purpose of a child's middle name is so he can tell when he's really in trouble.

How long a minute is depends on what side of the bathroom door you're on.

If ignorance is bliss, why aren't more people happy?

Most of us go to our graves with our music still inside of us.

If Wal-Mart is lowering prices every day, how come nothing is free yet?

You may be only one person in the world, but you may also be the world to one person.

Some mistakes are too much fun to only make once.

Don't cry because it's over: Smile because it happened.

We could learn a lot from crayons: some are sharp, some are pretty, some are dull, some have weird names, and all are different colors...but they all have to learn to live in the same box.

Everything should be made as simple as possible, but no simpler.

A truly happy person is one who can enjoy the scenery on a detour.

Happiness comes through doors you didn't even know you left open.

Once over the hill, you pick up speed.

If not for STRESS I'd have no energy at all.

Whatever hits the fan will not be evenly distributed.

Everyone has a photographic memory. Some just don't have film.

I know God won't give me more than I can handle. I just wish He didn't trust me so much.

You don't stop laughing because you grow old. You grow old because you stop laughing.

We cannot change the direction of the wind...but we can adjust our sails.

You know you grew up in the 1980's if ...
